Women Have Equal Access and Opportunities to be Leaders

On Thursday (25/4), the governor of Lemhannas RI hosted a coffee morning event with the editors-in-chief and journalists from print and electronic media with the theme “the Participation of Women in National Leadership” at the Nusantara Room in Trigatra Building. The event featured the State Minister for Women Empowerment and Child Protection Linda Amalia Sari, S.I.P.

In her presentation, the minister explained that Indonesia, actually, has long become a pioneer of women’s leadership since the period of pre-colonial kingdoms. She said there were many exemplary women leaders at that time who were highly respected by their people, such as Queen Sinuhun in Palembang, Queen Dayang Lela in West Kalimantan, Queen Daeng Pasuli in South Sulawesi, Queen We Tanri Ole in Ternate, Sultanah Tajuk Alam Safiatuddin Syah in Aceh, Queen Tribuwana Tungga Dewi (Majapahit) and Admiral Keumalahayati (Aceh).

Based on the Constitution of the Republic of Indonesia, it is clear that every citizen is equal before the law and government, and must uphold the rule of law and support government in national development without exception. “Women actually have the same access and opportunities to become leaders in various fields of development”, she said.

However, she said there is still “glass ceiling” of patrilineal culture that prevents women from organizing and expressing themselves as characterized by gender relations in the family, hence inhibiting women in their career in public office.

“The patriarchal mindset is not only happening in informal relationship but also in formal domain of power”, she said, adding that the mindset is reflected in the still gender-biased policies.

The government, through the ministry that she leads, has taken some affirmative actions, such as by making a joint agreement with other ministries/institutions and local governments relating to the development of women’s empowerment and child protection through gender mainstreaming strategy. Besides, a circular letter of four ministers (minister of finance, minister of home affairs, Minister for Development Planning (PPN) / National Development Planning Board (Bappenas) and the Minister of Women Empowerment and Child Protection on the National Strategy for the Acceleration of Gender Mainstreaming through Gender-Responsive Planning and Budgeting (PPRG) in various fields of development.

The coffee morning, which is regularly held once every two months, was attended by the Governor of Lemhannas RI Prof. Dr. Ir. Budi Susilo Soepandji, D.E.A., and Lemhannas RI staff members, as well as the State Minister of Women’s Empowerment and Child Protection.

Population Development in the Perspective of National Resilience

Demography, or human population, is one of the three natural aspects which is seen as blessing and main modality of the national building that must be managed and utilized intelligently in order to improve the nation's competitiveness. The comparative advantages must be balanced with the competitive advantages that derive from quality human resources or population.

With that regard, a National Seminar and National Working Meeting of the Coalition for Population was held on Saturday, (27/4) at the Grand Clarion Hotel in Makassar, South Sulawesi. The event was opened by the Coordinating Minister for People's Welfare HR. Agung Laksono.

The Governor of Lemhannas RI Prof. Dr. Ir. Budi Susilo Soepandji, D.E.A., who acted as a speaker at the event, conveyed that in the perspective of national resilience, demography is one of natural aspects which has contributed to, and played an important role, in the process of national development. According to him, the large number of population is the force that keeps the wheels of national development rolling.

With that perspective, the national development can be interpreted as a comprehensive human development of Indonesia, and the development of the entire society. Therefore, as both subject and object of the development, human resources have a significant role and contribution in the establishment of a strong national resilience.

"Human resources are a central point of population; therefore, the development of population, whether directly or indirectly, plays a vital role in terms of the five dynamic aspects of social life", said the governor.

Further elaborating on the development of Indonesian population, he said that the aspect, whether as individuals, family members, community members or citizens, is closely related to the resilience of ideology/politics, economy, socio-culture, security and defence. In other words, the development of Indonesian population cannot be separated from national resilience, whether as a concept or condition.

The population issue has long become an important issue in Indonesia following the increasing dynamic and complex population problem itself, such as rapid population growth, high rates of infant or maternal mortality, changes in age structure, population mobilization, and so on. The government and stakeholders need to give serious attention to the issue.

According to the governor of Lemhannas RI, given all the population issues as well as the demographic bonus that serve as a window of opportunity, the success of population development in the perspective of national resilience will involve a synergy between leadership and population that is based on moral strength, competency, behavior and national vision.

On Tuesday (30/4), a roundtable discussion on the Improvement of Indonesian Role in ASEAN Framework of the Equitable Economic Development (EED) for National Resilience was held at the Nusantara I meeting room in Tri Gatra Building of Lemhannas RI.

The event opened by the Governor of Lemhannas RI Prof. Dr. Ir. Budi Susilo Soepandji, D.E.A. was attended by the Secretary of the Governing Board, Principal Secretary of Lemhannas RI, Expert Lecturers, Expert Analysts, and Expert Professionals of Lemhannas RI.

The speakers at the event were Special Presidential Staff for Economic Affairs Dr. Rizal E. Halim, Executive Director of ASEAN Foundation that is represented by Ambassador Eddi Haryadhi and Lecturer of the Faculty of Economics from the University of Indonesia Dr. Telisa Felianty. While the panelists at the event were Deputy IV for International Economic Cooperation and Financing from the Coordinating Ministry of the Economic Affairs Rizal Affandi Lukman, Director General for ASEAN Cooperation from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs Iwan Suyudhi Amri, Professional Expert in the Field of International Strategy and Relations of Lemhannas RI Rear Admiral (Ret.) Robert Mangindaan and Director for International Affairs of Bank Indonesia Aida Budiman.

ASEAN Community itself was established with the purpose of further strengthening ASEAN integration in the face of international developments in the field of ideology, politics, economy, socio-culture, defense and security. When Indonesia chaired the ASEAN Summit in Bali in 2003, it sponsored a balanced cooperation in ASEAN through the ASEAN Charter. The ASEAN Community with the motto of one vision, one identity and one community is intended to ensure the implementation of the pillars of political-security community, economic community, and socio-cultural community.

Indonesia, as an ASEAN member country which sponsored the ASEAN Charter, should be able to take advantage and become a player when the ASEAN community is implemented in 2015. To that end, the spirit of nationalism and patriotism of the community and the elites needs to be constantly consolidated in the face of the realization of the ASEAN Community, particularly the ASEAN economic community in 2015, in order to strengthen national resilience.

The governor hoped that the activity will generate thoughts and inputs for Lemhannas RI in formulating policy recommendation for president that will be used for policy making related to ASEAN equitable economic development. Such policies are expected to reduce the development gap and expedite the process of ASEAN integration in the future, hence strengthening the ASEAN equality.

The roundtable discussion was attended by Expert Lecturers, Expert Analysts and Expert Professionals of Lemhannas RI as well as other invitees.

Indonesia's National Airspace Traffic Needs to be Regulated

Indonesia, as one of the biggest archipelagic countries by area, has a vast airspace which can be used for civil and aviation and military interests. Therefore, Indonesia must have the capabilities to regulate its national airspace, which is not only for the sake of aviation safety and for upholding the national sovereignty, but also for ensuring its economic interest.

Based on that consideration, Lemhannas RI, on Wednesday (1/5), held a Roundtable Discussion on the Urgency to Regulate Indonesian Airspace Traffic in Order to Strengthen the Stability and Security of the National Airspace and Uphold the Sovereignty of the Unitary State of the Republic of Indonesia at the Nusantara I Meeting Room, Trigatra Building, Lemhannas RI.

The Roundtable Discussion featured several speakers, namely Aviation Observer Chief Air Marshal (Ret.) Chappy Hakim, Airspace Law Experts Prof. Priyatna Abdurrasyid, S.H., M.H., and a representative of the Director of Air Navigation from the Directorate General of Air Transportation of the Ministry of Transportation Elvi Amir. Meanwhile, the panelists at the event were Chief of Staff Division of Military Area

Command Air Commander Bonar Hutagaol, Airspace Law Expert Prof. Dr. HK. Martono, S.H., LL.M and Expert Analyst in the Field of National Resilience of Lemhannas RI Maj. Gen. M. Nasir Majid and Director of Air Fast Indonesia Erlangga Suryadarma.

The event was also attended by the Deputy Governor, Secretary of the Governing Board, Principal Secretary, Deputies, Expert Lecturers, Expert Analysts and Expert Professionals as well as other invitees.

In his speech, the governor of Lemhannas RI said that, due to one thing and another, some of the Flight Information Region (FIR), up until now, are still governed by the laws of the neighboring countries. From the economic aspect, such a situation is not profitable for Indonesia as the country will not get the "fee" charged for the Route Air Service. Besides, in terms of the aspect of state defense, the condition puts some limitations on the Indonesian military aviation, including the possible foreign airspace penetration.

The governor has high hopes that the roundtable discussion will generate strategic insights into the urgency of regulating Indonesian airspace traffic in order to strengthen national airspace stability and security in order to strengthen the sovereignty of the unitary state of the Republic of Indonesia.
