As a developing country that still struggles with welfare issues, Indonesia pins its hopes on young entrepreneurs to boost the nation's economy. In order to generate entrepreneurs with a nationalistic perspective who are concerned about the national interests and people's prosperity, Lemhannas RI held the batch three of the strengthening program of nationalistic values which was followed by the members of Indonesian Young Entrepreneurs Association (HIPMI).

"The national prosperity can be achieved if the business climate is conducive and improved", said Prof. Dr. Ir. Budi Susilo Soepandji, DEA in his opening speech at the event held on Monday (17/2) in the Dwi Warna Purwa Building, Lemhannas RI.

The participants of the program, as business people, basically held a strategic position in the country's economy to bring prosperity to the people as enshrined in the national goals. All the efforts to achieve the goals are based on the national values, norms, conceptions, and insight of the Pancasila and the 1945 Constitution, the unitary state of the Republic of Indonesia and Unity in Diversity principle.

The one-week program young featured resource persons that, among others, included the head of Indonesia Investment Coordinating Board (BKPM), Minister of Trade, Minister of Industry, Coordinating Minister for People's Welfare, Coordinating Minister for the Economy, Governor of DKI Jakarta and many others.

Budi Susilo Soepandji hoped for the participants to develop anticipatory, cooperative and synergistic attitude for the interests of the people and for them to play an active role and reaffirm their commitment to solving the nation's problems in a professional and proportionate manner. They were also expected to develop a comprehensive, integral and holistic point of view, which was based on nationalistic values, for the sake of sustainable economic development and improvement of people's welfare.

The program was intended to strengthen the understanding of the participants of the four basic national consensus. Apart from educating the players in the economic sector, for the fiscal year 2014, Lemhannas RI also has other programs intended for legislative candidates, presidential candidates, doctors, youth and other stakeholders.

Lemhannas RI Conducts Study on the Impacts of Exploitation of Mining Resources

As a nation with abundant natural wealth, Indonesia has always attracted attention of many foreign companies aiming to explore its potentially profitable natural resources. However, there is growing concern about their contributions to the national economy which are deemed as not yet significant.

In order to optimize the added value of the natural resources exploitation to the national economy, there needs to be effective and efficient strategies in the management of natural resources. In that regard, Lemhannas RI held an ongoing study with the theme “the Impacts of Exploitation of Mining Resources on National Value-Added Economy in the Framework of National Resilience”.

The Focus Group Discussion, which was a preliminary to the ongoing study, was opened by the Deputy for Strategic Study Inspector General of Police Boy Salamuddin on Tuesday (18/2) on the 3rd Floor, West Wing of Astagatra Building, Lemhannas RI.

The discussion was moderated by Senior Analyst in Science and Technology of Lemhannas RI Ir. Kurdinanto Sarah, M.Sc. The resource persons at the event were Senior Researcher in Environmental Management from the University of Padjadjaran Dr. Rer. Nat. H.M.

The Development of Strategic Environment Should be Understood Comprehensively

Being situated at a crossroads location, Indonesia has never been free from the influence of dynamic environment, both at the regional and global level. Therefore, Lemhannas RI periodically conducts a study on the development of strategic environment. Such studies are aimed at developing a common understanding and interpretation in anticipating the bad influence and threats of the dynamics of the strategic environment to the nation.

On Thursday (20/2), a Roundtable Discussion was held in order to discuss the theme "Development of Strategic Environment of the Year 2014" on the 4th Floor, West Wing of Astagatra Building, Lemhannas RI.

The event opened by the Governor of Lemhannas RI Prof. Dr. Budi Susilo Soepandji, DEA featured key speakers, namely sociologist from the University of Indonesia Prof. Dr. Paulus Wirutomo, S.H., M.Sc., observer of agricultural economy Dr. Enny Sri Hartati, and Deputy for the Utilization of Science and Technology from the Ministry of Research and Technology Dr. Ir. Pariatmono.

The panelists at the event were political observer from the Indonesian Institute of Sciences (LIPI) Prof. Dr. Siti Zuhro, M.A., Director of Energy Research Center from the University of Indonesia Prof. Dr. Ir. National Resilience Measurement Laboratory (Labkurtannas) presented, each year, the results of its studies in front of faculty members and structural officials of Lemhannas RI.

The event, themed “Report of the 2013 Results of Studies of the National Resilience Measurement Laboratory and Its Implementation in Public Policies Simulation for Participants of 51st and 52nd Regular Educational Course Programs”, was opened by the Governor of Lemhannas RI Prof. Dr. Ir. Prof. Miyasto explained that in the last four years until 2013, the index score of national resilience, in general, saw an increase despite the less tough condition shown in the same spectrum. In 2011, the index of national resilience showed an increase from the previous score of 2.43 in 2010 to 2.44 in the following year. It went down in the following year to 2.43, but rose again in 2013 to 2.47.

Furthermore, the Chairman of Labkurtannas, in his presentation, also publicized data on strategic issues that developed in Indonesia during the year 2013. These issues included poverty and unemployment, wealth inequality, economic dependence, and the issues related to conflicts in border areas.

In his speech, the Governor of Lemhannas RI expected the faculty members of Lemhannas RI, the deputy offices of Lemhannas RI and the participants of the educational course programs of Lemhannas RI to make the best use of those results in their discussions and policy simulation.

Dialogue on Nationalistic Insight for National Leaders Strengthens National Characters

In 2014, Indonesian people, again, elect their leaders and representatives who will occupy legislative and executive seats. All the Indonesian people certainly hope to have leaders who are able to identify the nation's problems, to find solutions and solve the problems for the next five years.

In order to help formulate and recommend solutions for Indonesian leaders, Lemhannas RI invited bureaucrats, practitioners, academics, and politicians to a forum called "Dialogue on Nationalistic Insight for National Leaders for the Year 2014" which was held on the 3rd Floor, East Wing of Panca Gatra Building, Lemhannas RI.

The event was opened by the Governor of Lemhannas RI Prof. Dr. Budi Susilo Soepandji, DEA on Thursday (6/3). Budi Susilo Soepandji conveyed that the dialogue was used as a brainstorming activity aiming to find the right solution for political, economic, socio-culture, defence and security issues in order to develop Indonesia to become one of the world's largest economies by 2030. "It is deemed necessary for the institution to share views with stakeholders who play a strategic role in determining the nation's future with regard to the strengthening of nationalistic insight, as a contribution to the development of a democratic life, which is ethical, civilized and dignified", he added.

The dialogue was held in three phases, namely, Phase I (6 March 2014) for brainstorming activity and establishing the common understanding of the concept of nationalistic

Students of Prof. Dr. Moestopo University Visits Lemhannas RI

Students majoring in International Relations from the Prof. Dr. Moestopo University made a visit to Lemhannas RI on Thursday (13/3).

The visiting students were received directly by the Chief of Public Relations Bureau of Lemhannas RI Commodore E. Estu Prabowo and Chief of Cooperation Bureau of Lemhannas RI Colonel Kav Sudibyo at the Mini Auditorium, 3rd Floor, Asta Gatra Building.

Before coming to Lemhannas RI, the students had also paid a visit to the World Bank and Interpol. All those visits were an initiative of the students themselves as they wished to get first-hand experience from various national and international institutions which would make them more well-prepared for life after college.

On the opportunity, Estu Prabowo explained to the students the general profile of Lemhannas RI, ranging from the historical background, vision and missions to the long-term goals of the institution, which gave the students a thorough understanding of the basic duties and functions as well as the roles of Lemhannas RI in education, research and strengthening of nationalistic values.

Furthermore, the Chief of Cooperation Bureau Sudibyo explained the cooperation in Lemhannas RI, particularly the one that it established and maintained with other countries. In 2014, Lemhannas RI has established a cooperation with a German institution and a Malaysian university.

The high enthusiasm of the students were demonstrated during the question and answer session. The students even expressed their big hope for Lemhannas RI to continue developing and strengthening national resilience, either in terms of the education of national-level leaders and cadres, strategic studies which will result in policy recommendation for the president, or in the strengthening of nationalistic values for all national components.

The visit was ended with the students group leader presenting a plaque to Lemhannas RI. Estu Prabowo hoped that with the increased knowledge of the students about Lemhannas RI, more young people would be encouraged to join the institution and help bring Lemhannas RI to become a world-class institution in the year 2025.

Seeking Solutions and Preparing Strategy for the Implementation of BPJS Health

The Social Security Organizing Body (BPJS) has now replaced several social security institutions in Indonesia, which are state-owned health insurance firm (PT. ASKES) which was turned into Social Security Organizing Body (BPJS) for Health Sector and Workers Insurance Company (PT. JAMSOSTEK) which was turned into BPJS for Manpower Sector.

The BPJS for Health Sector is basically tasked with fulfilling the constitutional right of every citizen to have a social security scheme and provide a guarantee of social protection and welfare for all Indonesian people in the form of national health insurance.

The quality of services of the BPJS for Health Sector, as revealed during a Roundtable Discussion which was organized by the Directorate of Social and Cultural Studies of the Deputy Office for Strategic Studies of Lemhannas RI, still needs to be further improved. The event held on Wednesday (19/3) raised the theme "Improving the Quality of Health Services through BPJS in Order to Improve Competitiveness of Human Resources in the Context of National Resilience".

Held on the 4th Floor of Astagatra Building in Lemhannas RI, the event was opened by Prof. Dr. Budi Susilo Soepandji, DEA. In his opening remark, the Governor conveyed that health was one of the elements of social welfare which ought to be provided, in line with the ideals and purposes of Indonesia's national development. The state's commitment in providing health insurance is set out in the 1945 Constitution, particularly in Article 28a, Article 34 paragraph 2, and the Law No. 40 of 2004.

However, the BPJS, as a new system, is still fraught with many obstacles in its implementation in providing health insurance scheme to all citizens, including the lack of comprehensive regulations to anticipate the technical aspects of the implementation, the people's lack of awareness of the duties and functions of BPJS and the lack of facilities and infrastructure needed for such a program.

It is feared that such obstacles will hinder the achievement of the ultimate goal of the implementation of the national health insurance, which is to reduce the mortality rate. Moreover, there has been an increase in the number of patients which are not yet matched with the increase in facilities and infrastructure of the hospitals.

Seeking a solution to these problems, Lemhannas RI conducted a study on the optimization of the role of BPJS by inviting experts, bureaucrats, health practitioners and health observers through a roundtable discussion. The keynote speakers were Deputy Minister of Health Dr. Ali Ghufron Mukti, M.Sc., Ph.D; President Director of Social Security Provider Dr. dr. Fachmi Idris, M.Kes, and the Indonesian Consumers Foundation for Health (YPKKI) dr. Marius Widjajarta, S.E.

While the panelists at the event included the General Chairman of Indonesian Medical Doctors Association dr. Zainal Abidin, M.H; President Director of Jakarta Islamic Hospital dr. Prastowo Sidi Pramono, SpA; Prof. Budi Hidayat, SKM., MPPM., Ph.D from the Faculty of Public Health of the University of Indonesia; Senior Analyst in Economic Affairs of Lemhannas RI Prof. Dr. Miyasto, SU., and the Head of Cipto Mangun Kusumo Hospital Dr. dr. Czeresna Heriawan Soejono, Sp. PD; Head of Gatot Subroto Hospital Brig. Gen dr. Douglas S. Umboh, MARS and Head of Police Medical and Health Center Brig. Gen. Dr. Arthur Tampi.

At the end of the event, the Governor of Lemhannas RI conveyed some emphasis on the issue. According to him, BPJS had a strategic significance which might affect the national resilience with regard to the drug crisis being faced by hospitals and the open possibility for private/foreign investors to invest in Indonesia with capital composition of up to 70%. "We should not bow to pressure from the "global godfather" he said, adding that drugs were a strategic commodity that could undermine national resilience if controlled by foreign parties. Doctors, paramedical officers and government need to sit together to find solutions to the problems of health workers shortage.

The Role of Public Relations in Bureaucratic Reform Acceleration Movement

The Ministry of the Empowerment of State Apparatus and Bureaucratic Reforms (PANRB), through the Deputy Minister Ministry PANRB Eko Prasjo, opened the Forum of the Government Public Relations Coordinating Body (Bakohumas) on Tuesday, March 11, 2014.

The seminar held at the Sahid Hotel, Jakarta, was attended by about 105 public relations officials from ministries and government institutions, including those from the National Resilience Institute of the Republic of Indonesia (Lemhannas RI).

On the occasion, Eko Prasjo said that the role of public relations was very important in accelerating bureaucratic reform. According to him, many people and stakeholders still did not fully know yet about bureaucratic reform. Therefore, it was the role of the government public relations, both in ministries, government institutions, or local governments, he added, to spread the word about the bureaucratic reform movement to the stakeholders and community.

Anyone belonging to the Government Public Relations Coordinating Body (Bakohumas) is expected to have a common perception of the bureaucratic reform. Right now, there is no any other choice but to carry out the bureaucratic reform which will determine the future of the nation, said the Secretary of the Empowerment of State Apparatus and Bureaucratic Reforms (PANRB) Tasdik Kinanto in his speech at the closing of the Bakohumas seminar with the theme Bureaucratic Reform Acceleration Movement, in Jakarta.

The movement of bureaucratic reform should be further accelerated so that Indonesian bureaucracy is not left behind by other countries. To that end, a huge commitment is needed of all elements of the nation, including from public relations officials that should be at the forefront of reform. "If the reform fails, the fate of the nation will be at stake!" affirmed Tasdik.

Tasdik likened bureaucracy to a train that was required to run fast so that it would not be left running behind by another train. "Trains that become damaged need to be repaired immediately, right from the front carriage to the last", he said.

Therefore, Lemhannas RI, as one of the government institutions, has also carried out bureaucratic reform in its organization in order to create good governance in performing its basic duties and functions, including the mission to bring it to a world-class institution level.
