Attending STIN National Seminar, Governor of Lemhannas RI Discusses Strategic Surprises

Governor of Lemhannas RI, Andi Widjajanto, became a keynote speaker at the national seminar with the theme “Intelligence Anticipation in the Era of VUCA (Volatility, Uncertainty, Complexity, Ambiguity) in Supporting National Security to Realize the 2045 Golden Republic of Indonesia” organized by the State Intelligence College (STIN) on Tuesday (22/11) at Auditorium of Letjen TNI (Purn) Marciano Norman, M.Sc., STIN Campus, Bogor, West Java.

Anticipating the VUCA era in realizing the 2045 golden Indonesia vision, Andi Widjajanto stated that the cadets who had been appointed need to have a strategic instinct that was built from knowledge and experience. Through strategic instinct, the cadets will know what to do when they see an anomaly.

“One character in front of me is called a clairvoyant, someone who has very sharp eyes, ears, and senses so that he is constantly on guard,” said Andi Widjajanto. Furthermore, he explained the body of knowledge intelligence, which is the main part of the school curriculum. One must have several basic skills such as intelligence analysis and intelligence techniques with a combination of technical intelligence and human intelligence.

The teaching methodology that best shows the uniqueness of intelligence is strategic surprises and is a type of intellectual framework that tends not to be owned by other science. Andi Widjajanto conveyed that the difficulty of this framework is in lowering the warning threshold. “Strategic surprises will show a basic failure of intelligence if for example we are in this room hearing my explanation then there is no warning at all, no noise is replaced at all,” concluded Andi Widjajanto.

Socialization of National Values for All Lemhannas RI Personnel

All Lemhannas RI personnel attended the routine morning call which was led directly by the Deputy for Strengthening of National Values Rear Admiral Edi Sucipto, S.E., M.M., M.Tr. Opsla. on Monday (12/12) at the Gajah Mada Auditorium, Lemhannas RI.

Given the importance of Lemhannas RI's task as a national resilience-building institution, Edi Sucipto assessed that it was necessary to provide training on national values to all Lemhannas RI personnel. Therefore, Edi Sucipto filled the routine morning call by socializing national values originating from the Four Basic Consensus of the Nation.

"If we don't manage diversity well, it can cause disunity," Edi Sucipto said. Therefore, he emphasized the importance of understanding the national values that are owned by every component in Indonesia.

Edi Sucipto considers that the diversity of ethnicities, languages, cultures and religions in Indonesia is genuinely a strength for Indonesia itself. According to him, this diversity must be maintained to avoid various potentials and vulnerabilities that can cause social conflict for Indonesia. "Our founding fathers understood this very well, so they made Pancasila the basis of the state, as a lifestyle, as a glue, as a meeting point for this diversity," he said.

Apart from that, Edi Sucipto also highlighted technological advances that make the world always connected and borderless. The dynamics of globalization have also become a challenge for the Indonesian people in socializing national values. This condition became the initial foundation for socializing national values to all groups. "It is not only du Deputy for Strengthening of National Values, not for Lemhannas RI, but for the Republic of Indonesia," Edi Sucipto concluded.

Governor of Lemhannas RI: Indonesia has much experience in Disaster Relief

The Governor of Lemhannas RI Andi Widjajanto was a speaker at the 2022 National Seminar of the Alumni Association of Indonesian Armed Forces Military's Staff and Command School (Sesko TNI) (PASTI) with the National Disaster Management Agency (BNPB) with the theme "Strengthening Cross-Actor Collaboration in Disaster Management" on Tuesday (13/12), at the Borobudur Hotel, Jakarta.

In his presentation, Andi Widjajanto explained three things, namely modification of the disaster doctrine, the main approach to disaster, and Nusantara as a development prototype that pays attention to and mitigates disasters appropriately.

Regarding the modification of the disaster doctrine, Andi Widjajanto revealed that Indonesia has much experience in conducting disaster relief. According to him, this experience can be the basis for the formation of Indonesia's disaster doctrine. "Something I can emphasize for us to do together is to collaborate with us at Lemhannas RI, how do we jointly form a disaster management doctrine," he said.

Regarding the main disaster approach, Andi Widjajanto stated that there are three things that can be used as a reference, namely the 1 percent approach; the 3 percent approach; and the 101 percent and plus-plus approach. He also explained that the 1 percent approach means that even the slightest possibility of disaster even with a 1 percent probability, it is important to prevent it as a form of pre-defense.

Meanwhile, the 3 percent approach is the threshold for the percentage of the affected population and requires serious attention. "So the concentration is to get the other 97 percent out of the disaster area as quickly as possible and then move the focus on 3 other percent of the population," Andi Widjajanto explained.

If both of these approaches have been implemented, Andi Widjajanto believes that we will be able to jump to the 101 percent and plus-plus approach after the disaster. Post-disaster must be carried out by mobilizing exceeded capacity forces, therefore it is called the 101 percent and plus-plus approach because the strength will exceed the existing capacity in the disaster area.

Regarding the development of The New Capital City of Indonesia which is used as a model for regional development with disaster management qualifications and specifications. According to Andi Widjajanto, development can be carried out by taking into account the character of the building, evacuation sites within the region, evacuation routes, and logistics warehouses, to encourage specific disaster specifications for strategic vital objects in Nusantara-the name of the new Capital City of Indonesia

Also presented at the event were the Coordinating Minister for Human Development and Culture Muhadjir Effendy as the keynote speaker and the Head of BNPB Lieut. Gen. Suharyanto, S.Sos., M.M. and Chancellor of Defense University Vice Admiral Prof. Dr. Ir. Amarulla Octavian, S.T., M.Sc., DESD. as a speaker.
