Related to the implementation of General Election in 2018, Jusuf Kalla believes Pilkada will run well and safely. According to Jusuf Kalla who witnessed the previous election 11 safe, there are five reasons to ensure that elections can run well and safely.

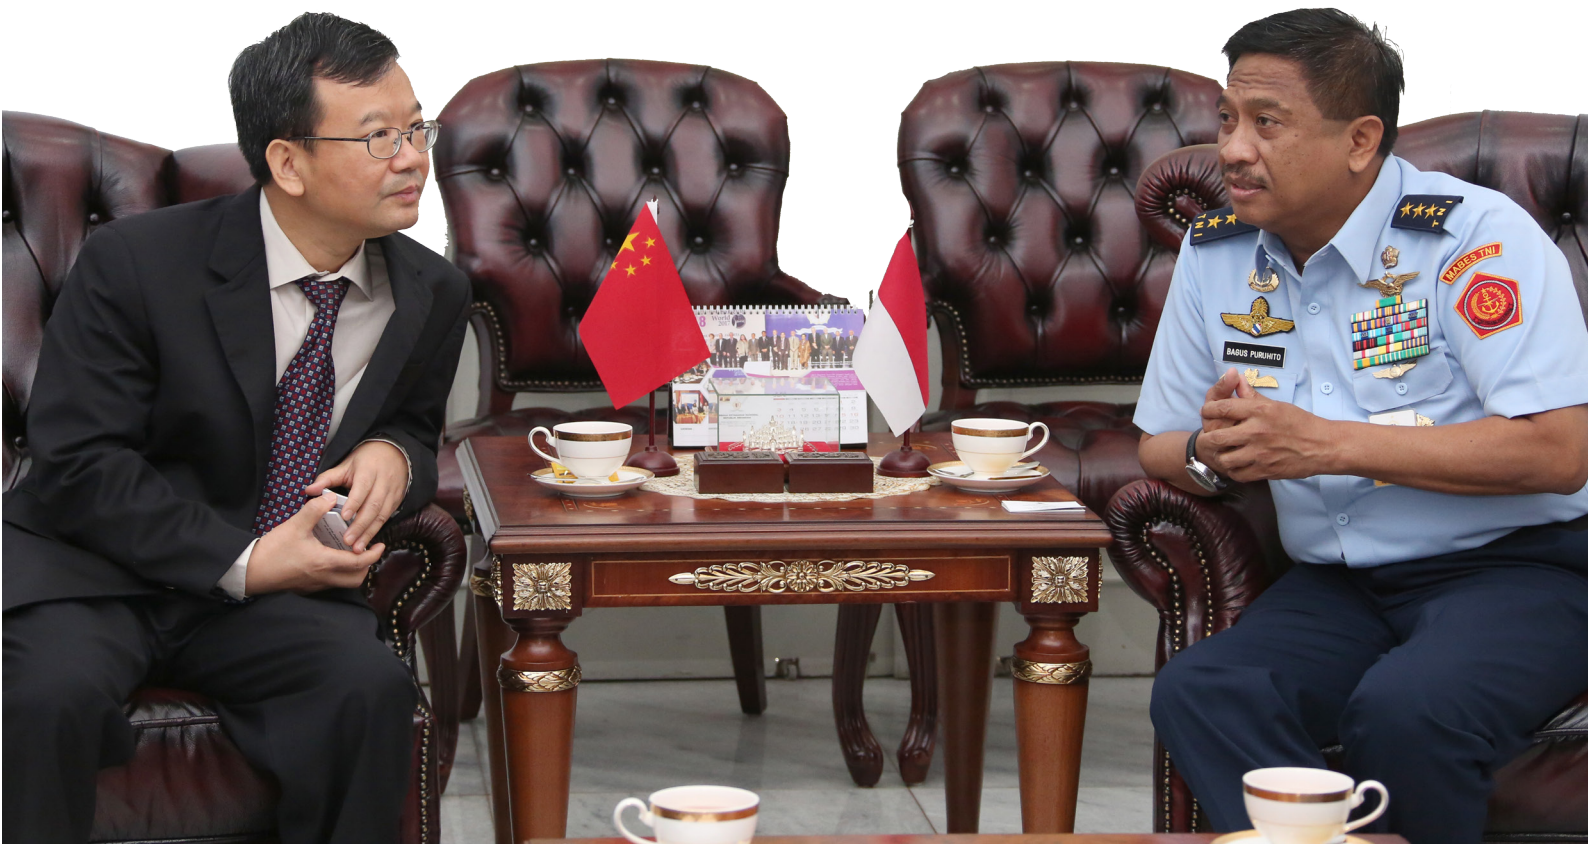

First, there is no national coalition. The whole party is now mixed up, there is no national axis. Second, strict KPU rules. Third, the guarantee of national security. Fourth, a lot of information already spread in social media and internet. Fifth, the existence of nationalist party. Currently there is no truly religious party, or a truly nationalist one. We can easily find a nationalist religious party, or a religious nationalist party," he concluded.

"In Indonesia, democratic parties are a way, not a goal. Unlike the United States which makes the democracy party as a goal, for victory, democracy in Indonesia is a way to achieve prosperity"

Continuing the series of Making Indonesia 4.0, Kemenko Maritim RI (Coordinating Ministry for Maritime Affairs), Kemristekdikti RI (Ministry of Research, Technology, and Higher Education), and Lemhannas RI organized the Capacity Building Program of Indonesia Leaders which presented the Inventor of Theory U, Otto Scharmer on Thursday (5/7) at Bidakara Hotel, Jakarta.

Minister of Research, Technology, and Higher Education, Moh. Nasir as Chief of the Program said, “If we look at the 4.0 era, 70 percent of the work will be in science, math, internet of things, etc. In this case, we have to learn throughout our lifetime”. Therefore, according to Moh. Nasir, this program is very important to improve Indonesia’s competitiveness in the future.

While the Governor of Lemhannas RI Lt. Gen. (Ret) Agus Widjojo, in the press conference, stated that if Making Indonesia 4.0 fails to be implemented properly, it will affect national resilience. Economic development may decrease because of the decrease in human resources competitiveness. “Leadership is the key, in the context of the system, we have to concern more on cooperation rather than individual work,” he said.

on cooperation. “We have to change our mindset to face the mental revolution. The participants from all unlimited components from universities, ministries and non-ministries,” he said.

This program is organized to form the mindset by providing an understanding of the Theory U which explained how to do a form of change in the world. Prof. Otto Scharmer, a senior lecturer at MIT, provides material on the Iceberg Model.

From The Iceberg Model, it can be seen that 10 percent of reality is above water, but 90 percent of reality is under the sea, which is invisible to the eye. To move from the top to the bottom is a pattern of thinking, what you know is the same issue,” Otto Scharmer said. Scharmer divides the Iceberg Model into the sociological divide, the structure divide, and the spiritual divide.

On the same occasion, Otto Scharmer also said that in facing problems, a community can do two types of response. “Indeed many of us feel that we are not part of choices and solutions which is not true. When there is a disruption, there are two steps we can take, the first is a turning backward or avoiding a problem, and the second is learning forwards or learning to move forward,” Scharmer said.
